Introduction

Tragically, it is estimated that three children die each day in this nation as a result of child abuse. Every day, thousands of children are abused both physically and emotionally, often by a member of their own family, an unmarried parent's partner, or a care giver.

In California, it is estimated that 376,290 referrals for investigation of child abuse and neglect involving 707,707 children occurred in 2002.

Each incident of child abuse is a tragedy. No civilized society can overlook the maltreatment of children without losing some of its soul.

Identification of abuse is the first step to strengthening our efforts in prevention and early intervention with youth and troubled families. Citizens and professionals who deal with children play a critical role in protecting innocent children who may be suffering from abuse.

Under California state law, specific professional groups, including educators, are mandated to report known or suspected child abuse. Knowledge or reasonable suspicion of child abuse is not privileged information and must be reported. This information may be the only means of escape for a defenseless child.

As an educator, you are in a unique position to help abused children escape pain, suffering, and even death. This handbook is designed to assist you in identifying the symptoms of child abuse and understanding your reporting responsibilities. It also answers some commonly-asked questions. Together, we can stop the abuse and give our children a chance at a happy, productive life.

What Is Child Abuse?

If you fall into the category of mandated reporter, you are required by law to report known or suspected child abuse.

The law defines child abuse as:

- Physical abuse
- Physical neglect
- Sexual abuse
- Emotional maltreatment

Indicators of child abuse are listed in this section to help educators and other school personnel meet their responsibilities under the Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act. (Penal Code, §11164 et. seq.) Of course, one of the most important reasons for suspecting child abuse is that a child has told you that someone has hurt him or her.

Physical Abuse

The term “child abuse” includes “physical injury inflicted by other than accidental means upon a child by another person.” (Pen. Code, §11165.6.) Physical abuse most often involves severe corporal punishment in which a frustrated or angry parent or other caregiver strikes, shakes, or throws a child. Intentional assault such as burning, biting, cutting, poking, twisting limbs, or otherwise torturing a child is also included in this category of child abuse. Indicators of physical abuse can be physical or behavioral.

Physical indicators

The type and location of an injury can help distinguish accidental injuries from injuries inflicted by physical abuse. Typical locations of injuries resulting from abuse are the back surface of a child’s body from the neck to the knees, injuries to the face, and injuries to multiple parts of the body. Injuries to the shins, elbows, knees, and forehead are not typically sustained from abuse.

Types of injuries indicative of physical abuse include:

- Bruises
- Burns
- Bite marks
- Abrasions
- Lacerations
- Head injuries
- Internal Injuries
- Fractures

Behavioral indicators

The following behaviors are often exhibited by abused children:

- The child is frightened of parent or caretaker or, at the other extreme, is overprotective of parent or caretaker.
- The child is excessively passive, overly compliant, apathetic, withdrawn, or fearful or, at the other extreme, is excessively aggressive, destructive, or physically violent.
- The child and/or parent or caretaker attempts to hide injuries to the child (e.g., the child wears excessive layers of clothing, especially in hot weather; the child is frequently absent from school or misses physical education classes if changing into gym clothes is required).
- The child is frightened of going home.
- The child is clingy and forms indiscriminate attachments.
- The child is apprehensive when other children cry.
- The child is wary of physical contact with adults.
- The child exhibits drastic behavioral changes in and out of presence of parent or caretaker.
- The child is hypervigilant; the child has difficulty sitting or walking.
- The child suffers from seizures or vomiting.
- The child, as an adolescent, exhibits depression, self-mutilation, suicide attempts, substance abuse, or sleeping and eating disorders.

Additional indicators

Other indicators of physical abuse may include:

- A statement by the child that the injury was caused by abuse. (Caution: chronically abused children may deny abuse).

- Knowledge that the child's injury is unusual for the child's specific age group (e.g., any fracture in an infant).
- Knowledge of the child's history of previous or recurrent injuries.
- Unexplained injuries (e.g., parent is unable to explain reason for injury; there are discrepancies in explanation; blame is placed on a third party; explanations are inconsistent with medical diagnosis).
- Parent or caretaker delays seeking or fails to seek medical care for the child's injury.

Physical Neglect

Neglect is the negligent treatment or maltreatment of a child by a parent or caretaker under circumstances indicating harm or threatened harm to the child's health or welfare. (Pen. Code, §11165.2.) It includes both acts and omissions on the part of the parent or caretaker. California law defines two categories of neglect: severe neglect and general neglect.

Severe neglect means the negligent failure of a parent or caretaker to protect the child from severe malnutrition or a medically diagnosed non-organic failure to thrive. It also includes situations where the parent or caretaker willfully causes or permits the body or health of the child to be endangered. This includes the intentional failure to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter, or medical care. (Pen. Code, §11165.2, subd. (a).)

General neglect means the negligent failure of a parent or caretaker to provide adequate food, clothing, shelter, medical care or supervision where no physical injury to the child has occurred. (Pen. Code, §11165.2, subd. (b).)

Indicators of physical neglect

Neglect may be suspected when one or more of the following conditions exist:

- The child is lacking adequate medical or dental care.
- The child is often sleepy or hungry.
- The child is often dirty, demonstrates poor personal hygiene, or is inadequately dressed for weather conditions.

- There is evidence of poor or inadequate supervision for the child's age.
- The conditions in the home are unsafe or unsanitary.
- The child appears to be malnourished.
- The child is depressed, withdrawn, or apathetic, exhibits antisocial or destructive behavior, shows fearfulness, or suffers from substance abuse, speech, eating, or habit disorders (such as biting, rocking, or whining).

While some of these conditions may exist in any home, it is the extreme or persistent presence of these conditions that indicate a degree of neglect. Disarray and an untidy home do not necessarily mean the home is unfit. But extreme conditions resulting in an "unfit home" constitute severe neglect and may justify protective custody and juvenile dependency proceedings.

Sexual Abuse

Sexual abuse is defined as acts of sexual assault or sexual exploitation of a minor. (Pen. Code, §11165.1.) Sexual abuse encompasses a broad spectrum of behavior and may consist of many acts over a long period of time (chronic molestation) or a single incident. Victims range in age from less than one year through adolescence.

Sexual assault includes: rape; gang rape (or rape in concert); statutory rape, when the offender is 21 or older and the victim is under 16; incest; sodomy; lewd or lascivious acts with a child under 14 years of age, or with a 14 or 15 year old when the offender is at least 10 years older; oral copulation; sexual penetration; and child molestation. (Pen. Code, §11165.1, subd. (a).)

Sexual exploitation includes conduct or activities related to child pornography and child prostitution. (Pen. Code, §11165.1, subd. (c).)

The nature of sexual abuse, the guilt and shame of the child victim, and the possible involvement of parents, stepparents, friends, or others in a child caretaker role, make it extremely difficult for children to report sexual abuse.

Sometimes a child who does seek help is accused of making up stories. Many people do not believe the child because the abuser seems well-adjusted and they cannot believe this person could be capable of sexual abuse. Also, when the matter does come to the attention of authorities, the child may give in to pressure from parents or caretakers and deny that any sexual abuse has occurred. The child may feel guilty about "turning in" the abuser or breaking up the family and therefore recant or change his or her story. This pattern of denial is typical and may unfortunately cause people to be skeptical of a child's complaint of sexual abuse.

The sad reality of sexual abuse is that without third-party reporting, the child often remains trapped in secrecy by shame, fear, and threats by the abuser.

Indicators of sexual abuse¹

Indicators of sexual abuse may surface through a child's history, physical symptoms, and behavior. Some of these indicators, taken separately, may not be symptomatic of sexual abuse. They are listed below as a guide and should be examined in the context of other factors.

History

- The single most important indicator of sexual abuse is disclosure by a child to a friend, classmate, teacher, friend's mother, or other trusted adult. The disclosure may be direct or indirect (e.g., "I know someone..." or "What would you do if...?" or "I heard something about somebody..."). It is not uncommon for the disclosure by a child experiencing chronic or acute sexual abuse to be delayed. Children rarely fabricate these accounts; they should be taken seriously.
- A child wears torn, stained, or bloody underclothing.
- A child has an injury or disease (such as vaginal trauma or sexually transmitted disease) which is unusual for his or her specific age group.

- A child has a history of previous or recurrent injuries or diseases.
- A child has unexplained injuries or a disease (i.e., parent or caretaker is unable to explain reason for injury or disease); there are discrepancies in explanation; blame is placed on a third party; explanations are inconsistent with medical diagnosis.
- A young girl is pregnant. (Note that pregnancy of a minor does not, in and of itself, constitute a basis for a reasonable suspicion of sexual abuse. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (a)(1).)

Physical symptoms

- Sexually transmitted diseases.
- Genital discharge or infection.
- Physical trauma or irritation to the anal or genital area (e.g., pain, itching, swelling, bruising, bleeding, lacerations, or abrasions), especially if the injuries are unexplained or there is an inconsistent explanation.
- Pain during urination or defecation.
- Difficulty in walking or sitting due to genital or anal pain.
- Psychosomatic symptoms (e.g., stomachaches or headaches).

Sexual behaviors of children

- Detailed and age-inappropriate understanding of sexual behavior (especially by younger children).
- Inappropriate, unusual, or aggressive sexual behavior with peers or toys.
- Compulsive indiscreet masturbation.
- Excessive curiosity about sexual matters and/or genitalia.
- Unusual seductiveness with classmates, teachers, and others.
- Excessive concern about homosexuality, especially by boys.

Behavioral indicators in younger children

- Enuresis (wetting pants or wetting bed).
- Fecal soiling.
- Eating disturbances (such as overeating or undereating).
- Fears or phobias.
- Overly compulsive behavior.

- School problems or significant change in school performance (attitude and grades).
- Age-inappropriate behavior that includes pseudomaturity or regressive behavior (i.e., bed wetting or thumb sucking).
- Inability to concentrate.
- Sleeping disturbances (such as nightmares, fear of falling asleep, fretful sleep pattern or sleeping long hours).
- Drastic behavior changes.
- Speech disorders.
- Frightened of parents or caretaker or of going home.

Behavioral indicators in older children and adolescents

- Withdrawal.
- Chronic fatigue.
- Clinical depression and/or apathy.
- Overly compliant behavior.
- Poor hygiene or excessive bathing.
- Poor peer relations and social skills; inability to make friends; running away from home.
- Aggressive, antisocial, or delinquent behavior.
- Alcohol or drug abuse.
- Prostitution or excessive promiscuity.
- School problems (such as frequent absences or a sudden drop in school performance).
- Refusal to dress for physical education.
- Non-participation in sports and social activities.
- Fear of showers and/or restrooms.
- Fear of home life (as demonstrated by arriving at school early and/or leaving late).
- Sudden fear of other things (such as going outside or participating in familiar activities).
- Extraordinary fear of males.
- Self-consciousness of body beyond that expected for age.
- Sudden acquisition of money, new clothes, or gifts with no reasonable explanation.
- Suicide attempt or other self-destructive behavior.
- Crying without provocation.
- Setting fires.

Incestuous/intrafamilial sexual abuse

Sexual abuse of children within the family is the most hidden form of child abuse. In spite of its taboo and the difficulty of detection, some researchers believe it may be even more common than physical abuse.

In discussing sexual abuse, incest means sexual activity between certain close relatives (e.g., parent and child; siblings; grandparent and grandchild); intrafamilial means sexual activity between persons in a family setting, (e.g., stepparent and stepchild; parent's live-in partner and parent's child).

In most reported cases, the father or a male caretaker is the initiator of sexual activity and the victim is a female child. However, boys are also victims, more often than previously believed. Embarrassment and shame often deter children from reporting sexual abuse.

Sexual abuse of a child may begin at any age, from infancy through adolescence. The first incident of sexual abuse may be followed by guilt-provoking demands for secrecy and threats of terrible harm or consequences if the secret is revealed. The child may then fear disgrace, hatred, or blame for breaking up the family if he or she reveals the secret.

Regardless of how gentle, trivial, or coincidental the first incident may have been, sexual abuse tends to recur and escalate over time. The child may eventually blame himself or herself and believe that he or she may have tempted or provoked the abuser.

Although a mother is usually expected to protect her child, she may purposely stay isolated from the problem. By being distant and uncommunicative, or by disapproving of sexual matters, the mother may cause the child to be afraid to confide in her about the abuse.

One reason for the mother's behavior may be extreme insecurity. The potential loss of her husband or partner, and the economic security he provides may be so threatening to her that she cannot allow herself to believe or even to suspect that her child is at risk. Another reason for the mother's behavior may be that she was a victim of sexual abuse herself and she may consequently not trust her judgment or her right to challenge male authority. For these same reasons some mothers actually know their children are sexually abused but choose to look the other way. Until the child is old enough to realize that incest is not a common occurrence; and until the child is strong enough to obtain help outside the family, there is no escape. This reality may change, though, if the abuse is reported by an outside party.

Extrafamilial sexual abuse

Children who are abused by someone outside their family typically know their molester, commonly through contact at school or in the neighborhood, or through involvement in youth programs, churches, or other recreational activities. People who molest children fall into all age categories, including pre-teens and the elderly. Although there are several classifications of child molesters, pedophiles present the greatest danger to children because their main sexual interest is children.

Pedophiles tend to be well-liked by children. They often choose work in professions or volunteer organizations which allow them easy access to children and in which they can develop the trust and respect of children and their parents. They believe sex with children is appropriate and even beneficial. They lure children into sexual relationships with love, rewards, promises, and gifts.

Although most cases of extrafamilial abuse involve a perpetrator known to the child, cases of abuse by strangers do occur. Typically in these cases, the stranger will entice the child ("Will you help me find my puppy?"); or convince the child that his or her parent requested that the stranger pick up the child; or the stranger may simply abduct the child.

Emotional Maltreatment

Emotional maltreatment consists of emotional abuse and emotional deprivation or neglect.

Emotional abuse

Mandated reporters may report suspected emotional abuse. (Pen. Code, §11166.05.) However, suspected cases of severe emotional abuse that constitute willful cruelty or unjustifiable punishment of a child must be reported by mandated reporters. (Pen. Code, §11165.3.)

Just as physical injuries can incapacitate and scar a child, emotional maltreatment can similarly cripple and handicap a child emotionally, behaviorally, and intellectually. Severe psychological disorders have been traced to excessively distorted parental attitudes and actions. Emotional and behavioral problems, in varying degrees, are common among children whose parents abuse them emotionally.

Examples of how parents inflict emotional abuse on their children include excessive verbal assaults (such as belittling, screaming, threatening, blaming, or using sarcasm); unpredictable responses or inconsistency; continual negative moods; constant family discord; and double-message communication.

Behavioral indicators of emotional abuse

Emotional abuse may be suspected if a child:

- Is withdrawn, depressed, or apathetic.
- Is clingy and forms indiscriminate attachments.
- “Acts out” and is considered a behavior problem.
- Exhibits exaggerated fearfulness.
- Is overly rigid in conforming to instructions of teachers, doctors, and other adults.
- Suffers from sleep, speech, or eating disorders.
- Displays signs of emotional turmoil that include repetitive, rhythmic movements (such as rocking, whining, or picking at scabs).

- Pays inordinate attention to details or exhibits little or no verbal or physical communication with others.
- Suffers from enuresis (wetting pants or bed) or fecal soiling.
- Unwittingly makes comments such as "Mommy always tells me I'm bad."
- Experiences substance abuse problems.

The behavioral patterns mentioned may, of course, be due to other causes, but the suspicion of emotional abuse should not be dismissed.

Behavioral indicators of parents or caretakers

The following behavior exhibited by a parent or caretaker may suggest that a child is being emotionally abused:

- The parent or caretaker burdens the child with demands which are based on unreasonable or impossible expectations or are beyond his or her development capacity.
- The child is used as a "battleground" for marital conflicts.
- The child is used to satisfy the parent's or caretaker's own ego needs.
- The child is "objectified" by the parent or caretaker (i.e., the parent or caretaker refers to the child as "it" — "it" cried or "it" died).

Emotional abuse can become a self-fulfilling prophecy. For example, if a child is degraded enough, the child may "live up" to the image communicated by the abusing parent or caretaker.

Emotional abuse is very difficult to prove. Cumulative documentation by a law enforcement or child welfare agency may be necessary for effective intervention. Therefore, emotionally abused children should be referred for treatment as soon as possible.

Emotional deprivation

Emotional deprivation or neglect has been defined as "the deprivation suffered by children when their parents do not provide the normal experiences producing feelings of being loved, wanted, secure and worthy." (Child Abuse Prevention Handbook, January 2000, Page 13)

Behavioral indicators of emotional deprivation

Emotional deprivation may be suspected if a child:

- Refuses to eat adequate amounts of food and thus is very frail.
- Is unable to perform normal learned functions for a given age (such as walking or talking).
- Displays antisocial behavior (such as aggression or disruption) or obvious delinquent behavior (such as drug abuse or vandalism); conversely, an emotionally deprived child may be abnormally unresponsive, sad, or withdrawn.
- Constantly “seeks out” and “pesters” other adults (such as teachers or neighbors) for attention and affection.
- Displays exaggerated fears.

When a parent ignores a child because of the parent’s use of drugs or alcohol, psychiatric disturbances, personal problems, or other preoccupying situations, serious consequences may occur. However, these situations are not reportable unless they constitute a form of legally defined abuse.

What Is Not Child Abuse?

Listed below are descriptions of situations or circumstances which are not child abuse for purposes of the California Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act:

- Injuries caused by two children fighting during a mutual altercation. (Pen. Code, §11165.6.)
- An injury caused by reasonable and necessary force used by a peace officer acting within the course and scope of his or her employment as a peace officer. (Pen. Code, §11165.6.)
- Voluntary sexual conduct between minors who are both under the age of 14 and who are of similar age and sophistication. (People v. Stockton Pregnancy Control Medical Clinic, Inc. (1988) 203 Cal. App. 3d 225, 233.240.)
- Pregnancy of a minor, regardless of her age, does not, in and of itself, constitute a basis for a reasonable suspicion of sexual abuse. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (a)(1).)

What Are Educator's Responsibilities?

School teachers, principals, counselors, nurses, supervisors of child welfare and attendance, and other designated school personnel who are mandated to report known or reasonably suspected instances of child abuse play a critical role in the early detection of child abuse. Symptoms or signs of abuse are often first seen by school personnel. Because immediate investigation by a law enforcement agency, probation or welfare department may save a child from repeated abuse, school personnel should not hesitate to report suspicious injuries or behavior. Your duty is to report, not investigate.

In the discussion below, answers are provided to some of the common concerns expressed by educators regarding their legal responsibility to report known or reasonably suspected child abuse.

What does the Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act require?

The Child Abuse and Neglect Reporting Act (Pen. Code, §11166 et. seq.) requires certain professionals and lay persons who have a special working relationship or regular contact with children to report known or suspected child abuse to the proper authorities. The following is an excerpt from the law:

(a) ...a mandated reporter shall make a report to [the police or sheriff's department, the county probation department (if designated by the county to receive such reports), or the county welfare department] whenever the mandated reporter, in his or her professional capacity or within the scope of his or her employment, has knowledge of or observes a child whom the mandated reporter knows or reasonably suspects has been the victim of child abuse or neglect. The mandated reporter shall make a report to the agency immediately or as soon as is practicably possible by telephone, and the mandated reporter shall prepare and send a written report thereof within 36 hours of receiving the information concerning the incident. The mandated reporter may include with the report any nonprivileged documentary evidence the mandated reporter possesses relating to the incident.

(1) For the purposes of this article, "reasonable suspicion" means that it is objectively reasonable for a person to entertain a suspicion, based upon facts that could cause a reasonable person in a like position, drawing, when appropriate, on his or her training and experience, to suspect child abuse or neglect... (Pen. Code, §11166.)

Which professionals are required by law to report suspected child abuse?

Penal Code section 11165.7 defines "mandated reporters" of child abuse as follows:

- (1) A teacher.
- (2) An instructional aide.
- (3) A teacher's aide or teacher's assistant employed by any public or private school.
- (4) A classified employee of any public school.
- (5) An administrative officer or supervisor of child welfare and attendance, or a certificated pupil personnel employee of any public or private school.
- (6) An administrator of a public or private day camp.
- (7) An administrator or employee of a public or private youth center, youth recreation program, or youth organization.
- (8) An administrator or employee of a public or private organization whose duties require direct contact and supervision of children.

As used in this article, "commercial film and photographic print processor" means any person who develops exposed photographic film into negatives, slides, or prints, or who makes prints from negatives or slides, for compensation. The term includes any employee of such a person; it does not include a person who develops film or makes prints for a public agency.
- (30) A child visitation monitor. As used in this article, "child visitation monitor" means any person who, for financial compensation, acts as monitor of a visit between a child and any other person when the monitoring of that visit has been ordered by a court of law.
- (31) An animal control officer or humane society officer. For the purposes of this article, the following terms have the following meanings:
 - (A) "Animal control officer" means any person employed by a city, county, or city and county for the purpose of enforcing animal control laws or regulations.

 - (c) Training in the duties imposed by this article shall include training in child abuse identification and training in child abuse reporting. As part of that training, school districts shall provide to all employees being trained a written copy of the reporting requirements and a written disclosure of the employees' confidentiality rights.
 - (d) School districts that do not train their employees specified in subdivision (a) in the duties of mandated reporters under the child abuse reporting laws shall report to the State Department of Education the reasons why this training is not provided.
 - (e) The absence of training shall not excuse a mandated reporter from the duties imposed by this article. (Pen. Code, §11165.7.)

Does the law provide immunity from civil or criminal liability for mandated reporters?

Yes. Mandated reporters are provided immunity from civil or criminal liability as a result of making a required or authorized report of known or suspected child abuse. (Pen. Code, §11172, subd. (a).)

Other persons who report are not liable either civil or criminally unless it can be proven that a false report was made and that the person who made it knew the report was false or made the report with reckless disregard of its truth or falsity. Any person who makes such a report is liable for any damages caused. (Pen. Code, §11172, subd. (a).)

May a mandated reporter who is sued for reporting child abuse be reimbursed for attorney's fees?

Yes. In the event a civil action is brought against a mandated reporter as a result of a required or authorized report of child abuse, he or she may present a claim to the California Victim Compensation and Government Claims Board for reasonable attorney's fees and costs incurred in the action if he or she prevails in the action or the court dismisses the action upon a demurrer or motion for summary judgment. The maximum hourly rate for recovery of attorney's fees is that charged by the State Attorney General at the time of the award and the maximum recovery is $50,000. Public entities providing a defense pursuant to Government Code Section 995 may not file a claim for attorney's fees and costs. (Pen. Code, §11172, subd. (c).)

Are employers required to inform mandated reporters of their legal responsibilities to report?

Yes. Any mandated reporter who enters into employment on and after January 1, 1985, "prior to commencing his or her employment, and as a prerequisite to that employment, shall sign a statement on a form provided to him or her by his or her employer to the effect that he or she has knowledge of the provisions of Section 11166 and will comply with those provisions. The statement shall inform the employee that he or she is a mandated reporter and inform the employee of his or her reporting obligations under Section 11166." (Pen. Code, §11166.5, subd. (a).)

If I do not report, may I be prosecuted?

Yes. Failure to report by telephone immediately, or as soon as practicably possible, and in writing within 36 hours is a misdemeanor "punishable by up to six months in confinement in a county jail or by a fine of one thousand dollars ($1,000) or by both that fine and punishment." (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (b).) Basically, the purpose of this potential penalty is to ensure that mandated reporters will report all known or reasonably suspected incidents of child abuse immediately to the local police or sheriff's department, the county probation department (if designated by the county to receive such reports), or the county welfare department.

May I lose my credentials if I fail to report?

Yes. Educators who fail to report risk loss of their license or credential. "The Commission for Teacher Preparation and Licensing shall privately admonish, publicly reprove, revoke, or suspend [a credential] for immoral or unprofessional conduct, or for persistent defiance of, and refusal to obey, the laws regulating the duties of persons serving in the public school system..." (Ed. Code, §44421.) Moreover, a failure to report may result in personal civil liability. (See Landeros v. Flood (1975) 17# Cal. 3d 399, 423-415).

How do I report?

A mandated reporter must immediately, or as soon as practicably possible, report by telephone a known or suspected incidence of child abuse (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (a)) to the police or sheriff's department, county probation department (if designated by the county to receive mandated reports), or county welfare department. The following information, if known, shall be provided at the time of the call:

- Name, business address, and telephone number of the mandated reporter.
- Child's name, address and present location and, where applicable, the child's school, grade and class.
- Names, addresses, and telephone number of the child's parents or guardians.
- Source of the information that lead to the allegation.
- Name, address, telephone number and other personal information of person(s) who might have abused the child. (Pen. Code, §11167, subd. (a).)

The call must be followed within 36 hours by a written report to the agency to which the telephone report was made. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (a).) The written report must be filed on Department of Justice Form SS 8572 (DOJ SS 8572), which is available through local law enforcement agencies, county welfare departments, and, in some instances, county probation departments. (See Appendix for a sample of this form.) Medical personnel are also required to complete a medical report on the Office of Criminal Justice Planning form entitled, Medical Report: Suspected Child Physical Abuse and Neglect Examination (OCJP 900).

Does the law allow schools to develop special procedures for reporting child abuse?

Yes. It has been the practice of many schools to develop special procedures for reporting child abuse. School personnel who are mandated to report should be aware, however, that regardless of the existence of such procedures, reporting to a police or sheriff's department, probation department, or welfare department is still required by law, and "good intentions" may not be a defense in a criminal or civil action initiated for failure to report.

Furthermore, reporting is an individual responsibility. A mandated reporter may not be absolved of responsibility by relying on a supervisor or administrator to meet his or her individual reporting responsibility. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (g)(3).)

The law protects an individual who reports known or suspected child abuse to a police or sheriff's department, probation department, or welfare department so that he or she may do so without fear of any sanction for making the report. The supervisor or administrator may ask that the employee notify him or her that a report is being made; however, the employee cannot be prohibited or impeded from making a report directly to a police or sheriff's department, probation department, or welfare department. Furthermore, an employee making a report may not be required to disclose his or her identity to the employer. (Pen. Code, §11166, subds. (g)(1) & (g)(2).) Further, any supervisor or administrator who "impedes or inhibits" the reporting responsibility is "guilty of an infraction punishable by a fine not to exceed five thousand dollars ($5,000)." (Pen. Code, §11166.01.)

When two or more mandated reporters jointly have knowledge of a known or suspected instance of child abuse, they may elect one person to report. However, if the person elected to report fails to do so, then the other person is responsible for making the report. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (f).)

What happens to the report?

Reports of child abuse are investigated either by the local law enforcement agency and/or by the county probation or welfare department. Reports received by the county probation or welfare department, except for reports involving general neglect and reports based on risk to a child which relates solely to the inability of the parent to provide the child with regular care due to the parent's substance abuse, shall be cross-reported immediately, or as soon as possible, to the local law enforcement agency having jurisdiction. (Pen. Code, §11160, subd. (h).) Law enforcement is also required to cross-report immediately, or as soon as possible, to the county welfare or probation department. The reporting law is designed to ensure that law enforcement, county welfare, and probation departments receive and review all reports whether initially reported to them or to another child protective agency. (Pen. Code, §11166, subd. (i).)

Those required to report child abuse should be aware that reporting does not always mean that criminal or civil proceedings will be initiated against the suspected abuser. If an investigation does not reveal evidence of child abuse but suggests a potential of abuse or other family problems a child welfare agency may intervene and offer appropriate services to prevent abuse before it happens.

Are mandated reporters required to give their names when they make a report?

Yes. (Pen. Code, §11167, subd. (a).)

Is the identity of a mandated reporter confidential?

Yes. The identify of a person who reports known or suspected child abuse is confidential and may only be disclosed as follows:

- Between agencies receiving or investigating the report.
- To the district attorney in a criminal prosecution.
- To the district attorney in an action initiated under Welfare and Institutions Code Section 602 (minors violating laws defining crime, wards of court) arising from alleged child abuse.
- To the child's appointed counsel pursuant to Welfare and Institutions Code Section 371, subdivision (c).
- To the county counsel or district attorney in a proceeding under Family Code Section 7800 et seq. (termination of parental rights) or Welfare and Institutions Code Section 300 (dependent children).

- To a licensing agency when abuse in out-of-home care is reasonably suspected.
- By court order.
- When the reporter waives confidentiality. (Pen. Code, §11167, subd. (d)(1).)

Are reports of suspected child abuse confidential?

Yes. Required reports of suspected child abuse are confidential. The reports and the information contained therein, may be disclosed only to the following:

- To persons or agencies to whom the reporter's identity may be disclosed. (See above.)
- To persons or agencies to whom disclosure of information maintained in the Department of Justice's Child Abuse Central Index is permitted under Penal Code Section 11170, subdivision (b).
- To persons or agencies with whom investigations of child abuse are coordinated under the regulations promulgated under Penal Code Section 11174 (investigation of abuse in out-of-home care).
- To multidisciplinary personnel teams as defined in Welfare and Institutions Code Section 18951, subdivision (d).
- To persons or agencies responsible for the licensing of facilities that care for children, as specified in Penal Code Section 11165.7.
- To the State Department of Social Services or any county licensing agency which has contracted with the state when an individual has applied for a community care license or child day care license, when an individual has applied for employment in an out-of-home care facility, or when a complaint alleges child abuse by an operator or employee of an out-of-home care facility.
- To hospital scan teams.
- To coroners and medical examiners when conducting a postmortem examination of a child.
- To the Board of Prison Terms when subpoenaed for parole revocation proceedings against a parolee charged with abuse.

- To personnel from an agency responsible for making a placement of a child.
- To persons who have been identified by the Department of Justice pursuant to Penal Code Section 11170, subdivision (c), as listed in the Child Abuse Central Index. (The report may be redacted in order to maintain the confidentiality of the person who made the report.)
- To out-of-state law enforcement agencies conducting an investigation of child abuse, but only when the agency makes the request for the report in writing and on official letterhead and identifying the suspected abuser or victim by name.
- To persons who have verified with the Department of Justice pursuant to Penal Code Section 11170, subdivision (e), that they are listed in the Child Abuse Central Index. (The report may be redacted in order to maintain the confidentiality of the person who made the report.)
- To the chairperson of a county child death review team, or to his or her designee.

Any violation of these confidentiality provisions is a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in the county jail or by a fine of $500 or by both. (Pen. Code § 11167.5 subd. (a).)

May a school district release information from a pupil's record in an emergency without parental consent or judicial order?

Yes. If a law enforcement agency needs information from a pupil's record in an emergency to protect the health or safety of that student or another person, the school may disclose that information (Ed. Code, §49076, subd. (b)(1).) This is a closely limited rule and, in fact, replaces a statute that had given more disclosure rights to the police.

Thus, if a law enforcement agency needs information from a school record, it must comply with Education Code Section 49076, subdivision (b)(1). When grounds for access are not clearly established, consultation with county subdivision counsel is advisable.

Is a school official required to notify a parent, guardian, or responsible relative when a minor pupil who is a victim of suspected child abuse is released into the custody of a peace officer?

No. If a school releases a minor pupil who is suspected of being abused into the custody of a peace officer, and the school later receives an inquiry from the minor's parent or guardian as to the student's location, the parent or guardian should be referred to the law enforcement agency that took the minor into protective custody.

The school official shall provide the peace officer with the address and telephone number of the minor's parent or guardian. The peace officer shall take immediate steps to notify the parent, guardian, or responsible relative of the minor that the minor is in custody and the place where he or she is being held. If the officer has a reasonable belief that the minor would be endangered by a disclosure of the place where the minor is being held, or that the disclosure would cause the custody of the minor to be disturbed, the officer may refuse to disclose the place where the minor is being held for a period not to exceed 24 hours. The officer shall, however, inform the parent, guardian, or responsible relative whether the child requires and is receiving medical or other treatment. The juvenile court shall review any decision not to disclose the place where the minor is being held at a subsequent detention hearing.

(Ed. Code, §48906.)

Before releasing a child who is suspected of being abused to a peace officer, the school should obtain the officer's name, badge number, and telephone number so that it can later give it to a parent or guardian who inquires about the child's removal.

May school personnel be present during an officer's interview of a child abuse victim on school grounds?

Yes. The child must be given the option of being interviewed in private or selecting any adult who is a member of the school staff, including any certificated or classified employee or volunteer aide, to be present during the interview. (Pen. Code, §11174.3, subd. (a).) The purpose of having a staff member at the interview is to lend support to the child and help him or her feel as comfortable as possible. However, the staff member must not participate in the interview or discuss the facts or circumstances of the case with the child. Furthermore, the staff member is subject to the reporting law's confidentiality requirements. A violation of confidentiality is a misdemeanor punishable by up to six months in jail or by a fine of $500 or by both. Lastly, a staff member selected by a child may decline the request to be present at the interview.
